Gregory Abrams has devoted his two-decade career to representing and counseling management in all facets of labor and employment law.

Greg focuses his practice on defending employers in their most complex and important litigation, tailoring his approach to each individual client's definition of "success." He also advises companies of all sizes in responding to and overcoming challenges involving their most important asset: their people.

Greg's litigation experience includes defending employers and other entities against class and collective actions under the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) and state wage-and-hour laws, Title VII, Section 1981, and other laws. Having managed matters involving thousands of potential class members throughout the country, he has successfully defeated class certification, prevailed on the merits, and secured favorable resolutions. He also regularly represents companies in prosecuting and defending trade secrets and restrictive covenants matters. In recent years, Greg has led the defense of multiple companies against class action lawsuits under the Illinois Biometric Information Privacy Act (BIPA) and has become a prolific speaker and writer on the topic.

In his employment counseling practice, Greg provides day-to-day (and often immediate) guidance on all types of issues, including restrictive covenants, wage-and-hour laws, employee termination, drug and alcohol testing, and criminal background checks. He also prepares severance agreements, employee handbooks, and other employment policies, and manages internal employment investigations. Clients appreciate Greg's commitment to partner with them to find the best way to advance their objectives while minimizing risk.

Greg routinely presents at CLEs and similar events on a variety of employment and related topics. His writing on employment and privacy-related issues frequently appears in publications such as Reuters (for which he provides a quarterly column), Employment Law 360, and Chicago Daily Law Bulletin. A recognized thought-leader, he has also been interviewed by multiple media outlets, including Bloomberg Law, Fortune, Chicago Tribune, Crain's Chicago Business, Society for Human Resource Management, Class Action Reporter, and Business Insurance. Greg has also served as a contributing author and editor to the annual FLSA Midwinter Report published by the FLSA Subcommittee of the ABA Federal Labor Standards Legislation Committee.

Greg is also committed to pro bono work, which has included representing multiple plaintiffs alleging federal due process violations in connection with Illinois executive clemency proceedings, an applicant for asylum, a Chicago Public Schools student seeking a specially tailored educational curriculum, and an incarcerated individual alleging civil rights violations.

Greg lives in Deerfield, Illinois, where he enjoys spending time with his family, coaching his sons' baseball teams, and chasing his dog (Wrigley).
