Paige Betley supports Tucker Ellis attorneys firmwide as a member of the firm's Junior Attorney Corps.

Paige joins our Junior Attorney Corps with a particular focus on complex litigation. With a strong academic background and a dedication to dispute resolution, Paige is committed to delivering comprehensive legal support in various litigation matters, including contract disputes, product liability, and general business litigation.

With an intuitive ability to communicate clearly and effectively, Paige reliably and promptly provides support to clients. She implements the skills she gained as a legal writing Teaching Assistant and Chief Publications Editor of the Cleveland State Law Review to draft written discovery and dispositive motions, as well as provide pre-trial analytical support.

During law school, Paige served as an intern to the Honorable J. Philip Calabrese of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio. She gained valuable, practical experience through an externship with the Cuyahoga County Public Defender's office, working one-on-one with clients and honing the same personable and professional approach that she applies in her current practice. These experiences helped Paige develop a keen understanding of legal research, writing, and litigation strategy, all of which she brings to her practice today.

In her free time, Paige enjoys spending time with her family and exploring the best local restaurants in Cleveland.
